Lyonss' Kathairon.—We have frequently been solicited, by houses interested in the sale of "Lyons' Kathairon," to reduce the price at which they are permitted to sell it by the dozen. On the 20th alt. we were waited upon by a committee of gentlemen representing the trade, who presented the following request:—

"Mr. D. S. Barnes, Proprietor of Lyons' Kathairon—We take pleasure in expressing our approbation to the high character of Lyons' Kathairon, giving ourselves and customers universal satisfaction. There are many who acknowledge its superior virtue, yet in some instances will limit their purchases of it to the actual amount they are obliged to sell, preferring to lay in the bulk of their purchases in articles which pays them (the retailers) a better profit. We think by releasing the dozen and half gross price, our mutual interests would be promoted, thus enabling as to give it a more general distribution among all classes of trade. The Kathairon's increased sale and wide spread popularity have created a competition, which would be rendered harmless by this course. Respectfully yours, &c. Signed by the principal jobbers of drugs and fancy goods in the city.

In view of the above, and other circumstances conmected with it, we have established the price of Kathairon throughout the United States, from the 1st day of February, at $1.75 per dozen.

We would take this opportunity of saying, that our desire is, not to break a gross in any instance. Our terms are undervatingly cash, and our retailing friends will see their interest lays in purchasing it of the jobbers, thus availing themselves of the usual time. We do not sell in any case least than one dozen.

Behay's Nioukrenoleo, or Medicated Compound, has never failed to cure the worst cases of falling off of the hair. As a remedy for baldness it stands altogether unrivalled. Its stimulating power in the preservation and growth of the hair is truly a tonishing. It will speak for itself on a single trial.

"New York Oct. 5, 1852.—I have used Debay's Nioukrenoleo, or Medicated Compound, and found it to be the most excellent article to promote the growth of the hair. A few weeks' daily use of it has caused hair to grow three or four inches long on a spot on my head that was previously entirely bald. The baldness was caused by scarlet fever, twelve years ago.

A CARD.—TO THE PUBLISHERS OF THE ILLUSTRA.

ted News, New York.—Gen'lemen.—In the notice of the monument designed and erected by me to the memory of Col. Richard M. Johnson contained in your this week, number, you have not only omitted the artist's mane, but, as if to add insulatio injustice, you have headed the article with a portrait of Mr. Clarke Mills, the sculptor, and a long article respecting him, then leaving the public to infer that Mr. Mills was the artist of that monument.

This is rather a poor requital for the coartesy extended by me to you, in furnishing you, at your own request, with the plants and models, and thus affording you every facility in producing the sketch, which. I must confess, might, even as such, have possessed a little more merit.
Whether the supparasion or mystification of truth in matters of this kind will add to the respectability of your paper you yourselver and the public particularly, will best decide. Yours, &c.
